Past Pharmaceutical Litigation Experience

People trust that prescriptions and medical devices will help them, but instead millions have suffered harm or injury. Unfortunately, drugs and devices are often pushed to market by pharmaceutical companies without ample testing of potential side effects. All the while, these medications and devices are regulated by the Food and Drug Administration.

The pharmaceutical lawyers at the Simmons law firm have helped thousands stand up against these entities to receive due compensation after injury or harm from defective drugs and devices. These verdicts and settlements have reached over $230 million.*

We have worked on a variety of defective drug lawsuits, all of which are listed below by drug brand name. The information on this page is provided for informational purposes only. As of 2011, the Simmons firm is no longer accepting cases involving the list below.
